FOREWORD

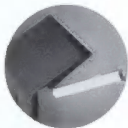

As we look back on 1962-63, we see a school year of moments, hours, days, and months filled with study and fun, books and games, students and projects, and teachers and friends. These and many other things have made up the school year which we will hold in our memories for many years. The 1963 MIDDLETOWN staff has attempted to capture these memories for you through pictures.

EUGENE RICHARD CARL

We, the class of '63, dedicate the Middletie to our former teacher and friend, Mr. Carl. We enjoyed the informal class discussions which were sometimes centered around our personal problems. Literature, English, and vocabulary were made interesting. We learned the meaning of hard work in his class, but it was enjoyable work. When Mr. Carl first came to Middlebury, he said that we were like baby pronouns. We hope that we have fulfilled his dream and that we are now proper nouns. We would like to express our appreciation to Mr. Carl for all his help by dedicating the Middletie to him.

ADMINISTRATION

SUPERINTENDENT

In a swiftly moving world, the marked routes on a map of life are a little hard to come by. Education can be that facet in human experience that trains man to think for himself - to help determine the route he shall take or make in the material and spiritual world.

Be determined that your education become a useful tool in your adventure of life.

GERALD HAYWORTH

PRINCIPAL

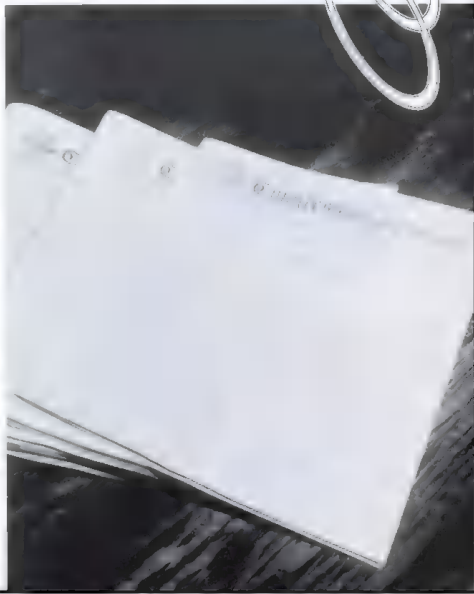

Growth, both physical and mental, is a hallmark of the school-age youngster. Unfortunately, all growth is accompanied by some pain, and in school we sometimes experience some very painful moments.

However, there are other aspects of growth which overshadow the painful aspect. The beauty, the excitement, and the fulfillment of maturation more than compensate for the accompanying pain, and as we reach toward maturity, we realize that the school environment is a secure and fertile place for this growth to be achieved.

SENIOR CLASS HISTORY

On August 31, 1951, thirty-six starry-eyed first graders began their long journey of education. With Mrs. Oberlin's kindness and understanding we soon realized that there was more to this world than Mother and Father. Mary Ann Miller joined our happy family for the last semester.

Hartier Bontrager, Ricky Shellenberger, and Delbert Miller entered second grade with us. These five wives gave Mrs. Oesch added responsibility.

In the third grade we met Mrs. Lantz and also Charlotte Berkeley. We, of course, lived up to the phrase, "third grade angels."

Mrs. Copp was our fourth grade teacher. This was the year that Karen Bertz was introduced to us. Each week we would crown a health king and a health queen.

Our fifth grade class was divided. Our teachers were Mrs. Bontrager, Mrs. Kridler, and Mrs. Fisher. Lawrence Pletcher arrived at this confusing time. Several times during this year Mrs. Bontrager's class came in from recess late. The whistle that she blew just wasn't heard when the two fifth grade classes played together.

Mr. Yoder was our sixth grade teacher. Matilda Hayworth joined us as we anxiously awaited this year when we would have our first male teacher. However, after careful observation we decided that teachers were teachers whether they were male or female. Dick Cook joined us in the early spring of our last year in elementary.

Entering Junior High was another great step. Moving from class to class was an appealing idea. We also had lockers for the first time. What fun it was to make all that noise! This year seemed very short because of the many new experiences that we had. We could sit in student hall beside a Senior, we were invited to high school convocations, and, most of all, we had a small voice in school activities. Treva Frye and Carolyn Yoder shared these moments with us.

The next year we settled down on studying. We tried to act more grown-up. After all, we had to set an example for the seventh graders. At this point Karen Mast joined our class.

Then came the day when we were full-fledged high school students. Wade Barwick, Naomi Beachy, Virgil Dolph, Elaine Hookey, Glen Kauffman, Betty Miller, Jerry Walker, and Sandra Weitz came from York and Barbara Harris came from Jefferson to share their high school experiences with us. The first of our many adventures was our initiation by the Sophomores.

Junior Sophomore year we took a biology field trip to Chicago and class our older siblings with the help of Ann Hooley, Harriet Schaefer, and Becky Thomsby.

Our Junior year proved to be very full and enjoyable. Becky Karmell and Mary Sue Wannberg joined our class in the fall. We elected the following class officers: President, Glen Kauffman; Vice President, Rick Shellenberger; Secretary, Ann Kutta; Treasurer, Harriet Bontrager; and Reporter, Meral Johnson. Our sponsors for this exciting year were Mrs. Smith and Mr. Fisher. Our rings arrived in October and we showed them off with pride for several weeks. During the basketball season we held our first concessions. Our class play, "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," was presented in April. Our projects for this year included a very successful magazine drive, a bake sale, and a car wash. In May we gave the seniors a banquet at the ABZ Restaurant in Elkhart. "Jungle in Paradise" was the theme that we used. We chose our class colors and ordered and received our sweaters shortly before school was dismissed.

Our Senior year finally arrived. We added our final two members to the class. Don Hostetler and Dennis Shereb gave us a total of forty-one members. Thirteen of these have been classmates for all twelve years: Tim Ealy, Barb Host, Meral Johnson, Charlie Kauffman, Ree Kuntz, Barbara Miller, Le Verne Miller, Glenda Miller, Joyce Miller, Wilbur Stutzman, Arlene Trayer, Sharon Trayer and Bonnie Yutzey. Our first senior business was the election of class officers: President, Glen Kauffman; Vice President, Rick Shellenberger; Secretary, Ree Kuntz; Treasurer, Harriet Bontrager; and Reporter, Jerry Walker. Mrs. Hoover and Mr. Shellenberger were our class sponsors. This year we sold candy in the fall, concessions at basketball games, and baked goods on four different occasions. We sponsored several skating parties and had a car wash. Our largest and most difficult project was our fish fry. We presented "The Perfect Plan" for our class play. We took a short field trip to Westville in the fall. On May 6, we left for New York City. After four glorious days of fun and excitement we returned on May 15. Baccalaureate and Commencement were the highlights of May and of our twelve years of hard work.

We will now leave behind us the buildings of MHS, but we will never be able to leave behind the memories that we have acquired there.

FIRST STATE BANK

OF MIDDLEBURY

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million, from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1995. The public sector has grown from 10% of the economy to 15% of the economy.

There is a growing concern that the public sector is becoming too large and too expensive. The public sector is now the largest employer in the UK, and it is estimated that it will continue to grow at a rate of 1.5% per year. This is a significant increase, and it is likely to lead to a further increase in the size of the public sector.

The public sector is also becoming more expensive. The cost of public services has increased significantly in recent years, and this is likely to continue. The cost of public services is now a significant burden on the taxpayer, and it is likely to become even more so in the future.

The public sector is also becoming more inefficient. The public sector is often criticised for being wasteful and for not getting the best value for money. This is a valid criticism, and it is likely to lead to a further increase in the cost of public services.

The public sector is also becoming more bureaucratic. The public sector is often criticised for being slow and for not responding to the needs of the public. This is a valid criticism, and it is likely to lead to a further increase in the cost of public services.

The public sector is also becoming more politicised. The public sector is often criticised for being a tool of the government, and for being used to further the interests of the government. This is a valid criticism, and it is likely to lead to a further increase in the cost of public services.

The public sector is also becoming more fragmented. The public sector is often criticised for being a collection of separate agencies, and for not working together. This is a valid criticism, and it is likely to lead to a further increase in the cost of public services.

The public sector is also becoming more diverse. The public sector is often criticised for being a collection of different agencies, and for not working together. This is a valid criticism, and it is likely to lead to a further increase in the cost of public services.

The public sector is also becoming more transparent. The public sector is often criticised for being opaque, and for not providing information to the public. This is a valid criticism, and it is likely to lead to a further increase in the cost of public services.

The public sector is also becoming more accountable. The public sector is often criticised for not being accountable to the public, and for not being answerable to the taxpayer. This is a valid criticism, and it is likely to lead to a further increase in the cost of public services.

The public sector is also becoming more efficient. The public sector is often criticised for being inefficient, and for not getting the best value for money. This is a valid criticism, and it is likely to lead to a further increase in the cost of public services.

The public sector is also becoming more effective. The public sector is often criticised for being ineffective, and for not providing the services that the public needs. This is a valid criticism, and it is likely to lead to a further increase in the cost of public services.
